SKY.LINES | Christopher Hauser | 28. May – 2. June 2012

Christopher's work combines contemporary and fine art photography to produce unique and powerful images. He captures dramatic and vivid scenes of our planet that take us on a journey, triggering emotions and awakening past memories.

After successfully studying Photography and earning his Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Fine Arts in London, Christopher began his work as an independent photographer focusing on architecture and fine art. Following his first private solo exhibition in Munich displaying a body of work from his Antarctica trip in 2009, Christopher has taken on projects of a commercial as well as personal nature that have taken him across the globe. His upcoming exhibition SKY.LINES features exhilarating photography of international metropolises.

His sensational panoramas portray the character of civilisation's imprints on Earth. The unique vantage points evoke fascination while stimulating our imagination, taking you away from your ordinary surroundings. Christopher wants you to witness and experience the fascination of the world in all its details and sums.
